Gardeners' world

Phillip Martin, five, and Merica Wilmott, four, proudly show off their newly planted flower pots at the opening of the community garden at Hobbs Place estate in Hoxton

RESIDENTS celebrated the renovation of a communal green space at Hobbs Place estate, Hoxton, featuring a new flower garden, several vegetable beds and wheelchair access path.

People of all ages attended the garden opening on 5 April, when youngsters planted seeds and played in a wildlife activity corner, while neighbours shared food and socialised. Zoe Marley, who recently moved to the estate, said: "I think getting people involved in growing vegetables and plants is a lovely idea." Other Hackney Homes residents interested in creating a communal garden where they live, should contact the Estate Environment team on: 020 8356 1722. For more info, see page 7.

Hackney Today is published by the London Borough of Hackney. It has a print run of 108,000 copies and is delivered free to every home and business in the borough. The Council uses it to communicate public service information to residents. It is published fortnightly in order to carry statutory advertising, such as planning and traffic notices, which is cheaper for the taxpayer than using another local paper. The law does not allow for statutory notices to be published solely online or in a less frequent publication.

The paper's official, door-to-door delivery is 90,821 copies per issue, according to Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC)

Paid for advertising is carried in the paper to keep costs to a minimum. We reserve the right to refuse advertising. The products and services advertised in this paper do not carry the endorsement of Hackney Today or London Borough of Hackney

We ♥ London Fields

LONDON Fields is ready for visitors to enjoy over the summer, with new toilets opened and the popular wild flower meadow replanted.

The meadow is a colourful haven for birds, insects and other wildlife. It is expected to come into bloom between June and October. Ground preparation and sowing is taking place this month, with the area roped off and inaccessible to the public until the end of June.

New toilets have also opened in the park, near Broadway Market, with two female and two unisex cubicles, a dedicated disabled toilet, and wheelchair access.

The toilets are free to use and will be locked out of hours, although an external screened urinal will be open at all times.

“People using barbecues should use the designated area created for it”

This summer, visitors are once again being urged to ‘Love London Fields’. New signage is set to go up around the park asking users to enjoy the space, but to also respect the residents who live nearby and the environment.

Visitors are encouraged to dispose of cigarettes and other litter, rather than leaving it on the ground, as it makes it unpleasant for other people. There are cow print bins along the edge of the park for recycling glass bottles and metal cans.

The Council has also introduced a specific barbecue area in response to residents’ requests, with a metal bin to put disposable barbecues in.

Park keepers will ask people to use a barbecue stand, or put it out. Barbecues are not permitted outside the designated area, which is at the south west entrance, near to Broadway Market.

Kim Wright, the Council’s Corporate Director, Health and Community Services, said: “We are asking people to help us by making sure that everyone can continue to enjoy this understandably popular open space.

“The meadow has proved extremely popular and become a major attraction. Please keep out of the area until the flowers have had a chance to mature and produce an even better and brighter display than last year.

“People using barbecues should use the designated area created for it. People should also use the free toilet facilities at the park.”

iDEA steering committee member will.i.am with the Duke of York and Hackney student Alina Tjurina, 18, at the launch of the new scheme

What's the big iDEA?

HACKNEY students were excited to meet pop star will.i.am and Prince Andrew at the launch of a new digital enterprise award.

Young people from Hackney Community College visited Buckingham Palace on 2 April to see the Duke of York announce details of the iDEA (Digital Enterprise Award).

The project aims to help young entrepreneurs develop digital skills and business ideas, while boosting their confidence and employability.

The college is one of “Today digital skills... are a baseline requirement to succeed in almost every career path”

nine partners involved in the scheme, as well as The Prince's Trust, The Studio Schools Trust, Digital Me, and Young Rewired State.

The scheme will initially support 1,000 young entrepreneurs during a pilot stage. Their business ideas will be tested and refined, before a final 20 ventures are selected to receive £5,000 funding, along with mentor support and a business placement.

Student Alina Tjurina, 18, said: “I look forward to starting the project in the summer. It's a great idea, and I think it will encourage young people in improving their digital skills.”

iDEA steering committee member will.i.am added: “Today digital skills incorporating computing, coding and marketing are a baseline requirement to succeed in almost every career path.

“Whether a young person aspires to be a fashion designer, doctor, solar engineer or musician, digital and entrepreneurial skills are essentials.”

Ultimately the scheme, which is run by UK charity Nominet Trust, aims to support more than 1 million young people nationwide.

News in brief

Speak out and vote on 22 May

RESIDENTS can find out more about the candidates standing in the local and European elections on 22 May at a series of hustings across the borough.

Community organisation Hackney Unites is holding the events to allow voters to gain a better understanding of candidates' policies. People will have the opportunity to speak to them directly about the issues that affect them. The 'Hackney Speaks' hustings include a youth workshop at The Elsie Centre, Dalston Lane, on 7 May, from 10am-12pm; a Q&A session at BSix College, Kenninghall Road, on 7 May, from 6-8pm; and a meeting at St John-at-Hackney cafe, on 9 May, from 7-9pm.

There will also be a Mayor's Question Time, where residents can quiz the candidates for Mayor of Hackney, at Hackney Town Hall, on 15 May, from 6.30-8.30pm.

The deadline for residents who are not on the electoral roll to register to vote is 6 May.

New guide to renting privately

TENANTS and landlords of privately-rented homes in Hackney can find out about their rights and responsibilities in a new guide.

The step-by-step booklet takes readers through the whole process, from looking for somewhere to live and a tenant moving in, to both parties knowing their responsibilities and rights, and who to contact if things go wrong.

Available online and in hard copies from borough libraries, Hackney Town Hall and Hackney Service Centre, the guide has been produced by the Council, with input from local tenants' group Digs.

Private renters in Hackney have more than doubled since 2001, and now account for 30 per cent of all households, totalling at least 32,000 properties.

Tributes pour in for murdered Council worker

TRIBUTES have been paid to Judith Nibbs, who worked for the Council's Meals on Wheels service.

The 60-year-old, who had worked for the Council since 2008, delivering meals to elderly people in the community, was found dead at her home on 11 April.

Among the flowers left outside her flat in Charles Square, Shoreditch, was a bouquet with a card that read: 'Judith, we can't believe we are not going to see you or that smiling face and your laugh. We are all going to miss you. Love and kisses, Meals on Wheels.'

Kim Wright, Corporate Director for Health and Community Services at the Council, said: “We are shocked and saddened to hear of Judith's death. Judith had worked for the Council's Meals on Wheels service since 2008 and was a popular and dedicated member of the team.

A Scotland Yard spokesperson confirmed that a murder investigation had been launched.

A 67-year-old man, who was found at the scene, was taken to an East London hospital where he remains. The police are not looking for anyone else in connection with the incident.

Platform for talent

HUNDREDS of people filled the Concorde Youth Centre to see performance showcase, Platform, including special guest Jermain Jackman.

The show featured some of the best up-and-coming talent in Hackney and proceeds from the 11 April event went to the family of murdered community worker Valerie Forde. The evening began with a dedication and one minute's silence for Valerie, who worked for Hackney Marsh Partnership.

Spoken word artist Heych then kicked off the entertainment and performed some self-penned poems, including one entitled 'My Darling'.

“It's a massive achievement to get into Cambridge. It's about having that dream, working hard at that dream”

Joshua Owusu sang and played the guitar. Renditions of Gnarl's Barkley's 'Crazy' and Ed Sheeran's 'A Team' were brought to life by the talented 13-year-old.

There were also spectacular performances by youth street dance crew, Ebonessence, choreographed by Josh Chester and Michelle Kwateng. The group, made up of beginners, intermediate and advanced dancers, received a standing ovation from the crowd.

Other highlights were rapper Maverick, who at 17, performed live for the first time, and singer Emily Grace, who won last year's Alter Ego competition, part of the Council's arts festival Discover Young Hackney.

Winner of BBC talent show 'The Voice' and local boy, Jermain Jackman, received a hero's welcome. He presented an award to Emmanuel Farinre, who has received an offer to study for a degree at Cambridge University.

Emmanuel said: "It's a massive achievement to get into Cambridge. It's about having that dream, working hard at that dream and being determined. It's about raising that level for everyone to raise their aspirations as well. If people can see that there's another young man, who got into Cambridge, they'll think, 'so can I'. So can the next guy, so can the next girl."

The event was organised by the youth centre board members La Braya, Rico, Ra'Sharn and Brian. Concorde offers a wide range of activities for eight to 19-year-olds.

HTSA SCHOOL DIRECT PLACES AVAILABLE FOR SEPTEMBER 2014 SCHOOL DIRECT – THE GROUND-BREAKING ROUTE INTO TEACHING

Train to teach with the Hackney Teaching Schools Alliance in partnership with Cumbria University. A Primary School Direct Programme (unsalaried) which awards PGCE, plus 60 Masters Credits and Qualified Teacher Status.

We are looking for creative, dedicated and talented individuals who are interested in training to teach in Early Years (3-7 year olds) to join the HTSA School Direct Teacher Training cohort for 14/15. Each successful applicant will spend a year based in one of our 11 Hackney Primary schools, working alongside a class teacher and supported by qualified mentors and personal tutors. You will also gain experience in other schools within the Alliance and a range of ages.

Our intensive one year programme will give you the training, experience and support to become an inspirational teacher and leader both in the classroom and beyond.

WHY TRAIN TO TEACH WITH THE HTSA?

- ♦ Teaching is a rewarding and well respected profession
- ♦ Hackney schools are widely recognised as some of the best in the country
- ♦ High quality school-based training that continues to support your development after QTS
- ♦ Innovative programme designed by outstanding practicing Hackney teachers
- ♦ Train in supportive, creative, diverse and learning focussed schools
- ♦ Outstanding practitioners and Specialist Leaders of Education (SLEs) delivering the programme
- ♦ A proven track record of successful teacher training with Cumbria University (East London)
- ♦ Be a part of a group of like minded, ambitious, high achieving teachers who put children at the forefront of everything they do
- ♦ Once qualified you are able to teach in any primary class, in any school, virtually anywhere in the world

WHO SHOULD APPLY?

You should have a degree of 2:1 or above, English, Maths and Science GCSE or equivalent grade C or above and some relevant work experience. You must have a passion for learning and be dedicated to changing lives and life chances in a challenging and multi-cultural environment. We welcome career changers, return to work after career breakers and are particularly interested in increasing the diversity of our teaching pool for the future.

An application for 2014-15 places is managed by UCAS. Please follow this link for detailed information and to complete your application:

http://www.ucas.com/apply/teacher-training_select_Kingsmead_Primary_School_Primary:29Q6

We are only looking for Early Years trainees in this round of recruitment, however, all trainees will be part of the 24 strong cross phase HTSA cohort and will receive specific Early Years training separate from the rest of the cohort. All training takes place in our purpose built training centre, the Portico, Clapton E5.

A bloomin' beautiful garden

RESIDENTS from Hobbs Place estate in Hoxton celebrated the official opening of their community vegetable garden on 5 April.

The Hemsworth Court

communal green space has received a new lease of life with a flower garden, several vegetable beds and a new wheelchair access path, which was donated by Davies Highways.

People of all ages attended the event, which showcased the garden's new features, and enjoyed a selection of homemade food.

Youngsters planted seeds and played in a wildlife activity corner, while neighbours mingled with each other and were entertained by the reggae sounds of DJ Bandeno.

Chair of Hobbs Place Tenants and Residents Association, Suna Shanahan, recently embarked on a level two City and Guilds horticultural course with charity The Hoxton Trust, which equipped her with the skills needed to set up a communal garden on her estate.

She said: "We have had a lot of support from residents to create our new space and we are planning many more functions in the community garden as it has brought the neighbours closer together."

"I would also like to thank The Hoxton Trust, which played a pivotal role in helping create our community garden."

Zoe Marley, who recently moved to the Hoxton estate, said: "I think getting people involved in growing vegetables and plants is a really lovely idea."

"Many children in London do not have access to a garden and this is a great way to get them involved in planting."

The project was funded by the Council's Community Chest fund and supported by Hackney Homes Grounds Maintenance team, which donated a green house and water butt to collect rainwater that can be used for watering plants.

"We are planning many more functions in the community garden. It has brought the neighbours closer together"

Community heroes

The Hackney Homes Active Residents Awards shone a light on volunteers in the community

PEOPLE who go the extra mile to make a difference to their community were celebrated at this year's Hackney Homes Active Residents Awards.

The ceremony, which took place at the Petchey Academy on 9 April, looked back over the past 12 months, acknowledging those who made a positive difference to their area.

Over 100 residents, involved in Tenant and Residents Associations (TRA) and other forms of community engagement, attended the annual event. Kristine Wellington, from

"I thank all who took time to nominate me. I love my estate and there is a real community feel among us"

Hackney Community Voluntary Services, opened the evening's proceedings with a motivational speech that shone a light on the impact that volunteers have on the community.

Winners on the night included

Renee Mitchel, Young Resident of the Year; Kenneth Gilmour, Ron Devoti Award for Long Services to Hackney; and Suffolk Estate Tenants Management Organisation, Resident Group of the Year.

Marie Miller was named Resident of the Year. She has been a key member of the Lordship North TRA for many years and a pillar of the community. Marie was instrumental in setting up after school homework clubs, encouraging social outings for residents, and organising an over 50s computer class.

Marie said: "It was

King of cool

SOME people have the Midas touch. The projects they put their minds to succeed in a way that has competitors wondering where their own ideas went wrong. They find financial and commercial success that others can only dream of and, as their career advances, their entrepreneurial skills become more honed.

Dominic Cools-Lartigue – the brains behind trendy food and drink events Fairground, Hawker House, and Street Feast (all of which were situated in and around Hackney), and former manager of Leicester Square nightclub Home – is one of those people.

Dominic moved to Hackney a year ago. He says: “I’ve lived here before, but this is where I’m going to stay, I absolutely love it. I grew up in Portobello and it kind of reminds me of that area. It has the energy and vibrancy that Portobello had in the late 80s and early 90s, that community spirit.

“It’s a really creative area and that’s part of the reason I’m doing these projects here, I think we need to have somewhere that has a little bit of the creative spirit inspired by the regeneration of Hackney that happened 20 years ago.

“That’s the whole reason why the whole of this area got regenerated, because of artists and musicians and so on. It’s going to develop, that’s going to happen, and developers are going to move in, but that’s why we’re doing this, staying true to the roots of what happened in the first place.”

Street Feast was launched in May 2012, in a car park in Sclater Street, off Brick Lane.

Crowds jostled for some of the best street food in London, from the likes of The Ribman, Big Apple Hot Dogs, Homeslice and Wahaca’s Mexican Street Kitchen.

Dominic chose the vendors by visiting different areas and sampling food from individual stalls. He said: “I went out with my son. I was at every market in London, learning all about it, getting properly immersed in the whole scene. It was fun.”

The first Street Feast stayed in Sclater Street for five weeks before moving to a spot in Camden, then to Dalston Yard where it truly established itself.

Pop-up indoor food and drink market Hawker House, just off Broadway Market, was in an old textiles factory. It was packed out for a 10 week run last year.

Dominic explains: “We got the keys about six days before it opened and we renovated it and turned it into Hawker House.”

The short turnaround time from derelict to up-and-running has been replicated with Fairground, which opened in a former office block on Kingsland Road this month. During this interview, workmen are still sawing through big hunks of wood and carrying planks around the venue.

Dominic says: “I suppose we’ve grown more confident in our approach, from taking over a little ramshackle car park and sticking it full of street food traders and turning it into a market. That was only two years ago, now we’re taking over buildings.

“That’s the process I enjoy, looking into a space which was just empty and thinking, okay, we’re going to raise that level here.”

So what is it about Hackney that Dominic likes the most? He says: “I love the canal, I love the spirit of the place, the energy. I feel at home walking around here. I go all over London, but it’s like when you go abroad, I always love coming home.”

All your green questions answered

Q: I bought a new toilet seat this week. The old one is made of plastic, can I put it in a recycling bin?

A: The recycling centre used by the Council, does not process hard plastics like this. It can still be recycled however, either by taking it to a household waste recycling centre in a neighbouring borough, or booking a free, bulky waste collection from your home address.

Residents can use the following centres in Islington, 40 Hornsey Street, N7 8HU; Waltham Forest, South Access Road, E17 8BS; Leyton, Gateway Road, E10 5BY; and Tottenham, Park View Road, N17 9AY.

Alternatively, to book a free, bulky waste collection visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/recycling. Residents can request a maximum of four collections a year, with up to five items per collection.

from garden and food waste recycled in Hackney and other London boroughs. Budding gardeners filled boxes, bags, and even bike baskets full of compost to take home to give their plants the perfect start to the growing season. Children were also able to take part in fun activities arranged by ecoACTIVE, an environmental education charity. The Council sells subsidised compost bins for £9, which is £30 less than it would cost in the shops. For more info, visit: www.hackney.getcomposting.com

On a real nappy hunt

FAMILIES in Hackney are being challenged to find special hidden washing lines adorned with cloth nappies in a competition to mark Real Nappy Week.

The washing lines will be hung in family-friendly places around the borough for the duration of the week, which runs from 28 April to 4 May.

People are encouraged to take a photo at the secret locations and either post it on Facebook, tweet or e-mail it to the Hackney Real Nappy Network to be entered into a prize draw.

“ Cloth nappies are bright, colourful and look great, and can save families money ”

Madlyn Ray-Jones, from the network, said: “The washing lines are a fun way to mark Real Nappy Week, as well as getting families interested in making the switch from disposables.

“Cloth nappies are bright, colourful and look great, and can also save families considerable amounts of money and are far more environmentally friendly than disposables.”

From birth to potty an average parent forks out £1,000 on nappies, and throws almost a tonne of them in the bin.

The Hackney Real Nappy Network meets once a month. Residents can get a free £54 voucher to spend on cloth nappies when they attend. The next two meeting dates are 23 May and 27 June.

For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/nappies.

Photos to enter the competition can be submitted via: facebook.com/hackneyrealnappynetwork; or: twitter.com/hackneynappynet

Take a photo in front of the washing lines and send it to the Hackney Real Nappy Network

HANG-Up Gallery's new exhibition Sirens opens on 2 May. In it artist Rosie Emerson depicts ethereal figures using a combination of print, photography, collage and film.

Rosie's inspiration for her new show derives from the historic technique of cyanotype printing, which was used by engineers to reproduce notes and diagrams known as blue prints. Rosie has given this a modern spin, with influences from botanist

Anna Atkins. Using props, ornate costumes and dramatic lighting, she has modelled her subjects into alluring creatures.

Also in the downstairs gallery, there is a screening of 'White Knight', Rosie's new film shot on a Super 8 camera, where the relationship between the audience and the model is subtly flipped.

Useful + Beautiful: Contemporary Design for the Home

29 April-25 August, Geffrye Museum, Kingsland Rd, E2 8EA

AN exhibition showcasing beautiful, contemporary domestic products is due to open at the Geffrye Museum this month. It will highlight the various issues faced by designers – such as efficiency, sustainability, durability, usefulness and beauty – and will give an insight into future designs for our homes.

'Useful + Beautiful: Contemporary Designs for the Home' features work from well-established figures such as Jasper Morrison, Tord Boontje, Barber Osgerby, Doshi Levien and Tomoko Azumi. Objects ranging from furniture to wallpaper, and lighting to homewares will be on display, with some spilling out into the museum's blossoming garden. Visitors will also have the chance to try out some of the items on display. A panel debate: 'An Ideal Home?' featuring designer Wayne Hemingway, Heal's creative director Carmel Allen, and lecturer Gareth Williams will discuss good design for the home, in the present and future. Topics are set to include technology, the environment and the economic, commercial and political landscape.

The exhibition runs until 25 August. Tickets cost £5/£3 concs. The panel debate takes place from 7pm to 8.30pm on 8 May. Tickets cost £18, £14.50 concs.

Speaking out

1. Students perform; 2. Raymond Antrobus; 3. Joelle Taylor; 4. Student Kenya McKenzie, 17

CARDINAL Pole Catholic School students got in touch with their poetic side when they took part in a spoken word showcase on 9 April.

Hosted by spoken word coach Raymond Antrobus, pupils, teachers and guests enjoyed a lively evening featuring performances by 26 students. They cheered each other on and showed appreciation by clicking their fingers so as not to disturb the flow of poetry. Themes ranged from love and death to the 2011 riots.

Guests included poet, sportswriter and author Musa Okwonga; founder of Slambassadors UK, Joelle Taylor, who performed to a standing ovation; and science teacher, Damien Phelan, who moved some of the students to tears with a touching eulogy to children at the school.

Joshua Izundu, 16, who performed on the night, said: "I have a new appreciation for spoken word. I have learnt how to turn a picture into words."

The Spoken Word Education programme was established last September, with six full-time educators based at London secondary schools, including Raymond at Cardinal Pole.

The aim is to raise young people's confidence, self-expression, team-building and leadership skills, while developing oral communication and literacy skills.

Raymond said: "Almost all of the young poets I have worked with have seen an improvement in their literacy and confidence in writing and public speaking."

SEN update

MAJOR national changes to the way children with special education needs (SEN) are supported, are due to come into force on 1 September. To help families prepare, Hackney Today is featuring information about services every month.

Workshops and Q&A sessions available about SEN reforms

AHEAD of national changes to services for children with special educational needs (SEN), the Council is organising a series of workshops and question and answer sessions to explain how the reforms will affect Hackney families.

One of the key changes will be the phasing out of 'statements', which will be replaced with Education, Health and Care (EHC) plans. Instead of focusing exclusively on a child's educational attainment, EHC plans will also consider input from health and social care services where appropriate.

It will mean just one meeting and assessment, led by the young person, their family and an EHC plan coordinator, who will invite other relevant professionals. EHC plans will be rolled out from this September.

Helen McNulty, Head of Head of Additional Needs at Hackney Learning Trust, said: "Parents are understandably anxious about the changes that are due to come in nationwide from the autumn term. That is why we are arranging a series of events for people to come along and find out more and ask any questions they may have."

"The Government's consultation on the content and format of the EHC plans is ongoing, so while we don't know all of the final details, we want to share what we do know, reassure parents and carers and start a dialogue with them, so that they know who to talk to if they have any concerns."

Parents and carers can find out more at a Parent Partnership Conference, in the Tomlinson Centre, from 9.30am to 3pm on 10 July. The free event will include workshops on EHC plans, personal budgets, the local offer and preparing for adulthood.

A free crèche, lunch and interpreters are available.

Book a place by calling: 020 7014 7019.

Further information events will be held across the borough before the summer holidays begin.

View and respond to the consultation on the draft EHC plans by 10 July, at: www.learningtrust/consultations a relay marathon to raise money for a new playground, clocking up a total of 762 miles between them.

The E5 school enlisted the help of ex-pupil and boxing champion, Jason Matthews, in the 10-hour session on 28 March. Hundreds of people joined in and ran a total of almost 15,000 laps of the playground.

During the relay, TV sports presenters Claire Balding and Jake Humphrey tweeted good luck to the runners.

Ian Mullaney, Rushmore Headteacher, said: "Well done and a big thank you to everyone who took part. It was fantastic to see so many children, parents and carers coming together with such team spirit and sense of community."

Jason added: "I'm really happy to have been able to give my support today. It's been fantastic coming back to Rushmore school. I've had a great day."

Pirates of the East End

THE Hackney Pirates have opened a new building in Dalston designed to expand learning opportunities for young people.

The charity, which helps develop youngsters literacy and confidence through one-to-one support, relocated to a four-storey building in Kingsland High Street following a fundraising campaign to establish new headquarters.

The organisation, which had previously been working from temporary locations, raised enough “Part of the importance of the launch of the building and its shop is that we can show off our Young Pirates’ work” money to transform the building so it now includes an adventure themed book, gift and coffee shop, which is open to the public. Any profits go towards supporting the charity.

The new base, known as the Ship of Adventures, is visually captivating, with a boat hanging from the ceiling, a telephone delivering inspirational messages from young pirates, and even a cosy underwater cave.

Catriona Maclay, Hackney Pirates founder, said at the official opening on 10 April: “Part of the importance of the building and its shop is that we can show off our Young Pirates’ creative work to the world. They can say ‘I am a published author, and you can buy my book at the Ship of Adventures’.”

Around 250 volunteers work with children, aged nine to 12-years-old, who have been referred by local education partners for extra support, working on publishing projects such as books, CDs and websites.

New ballet classes for kids

A BALLET and theatre group for children has opened at Chats Palace offering 12 weeks of community classes. Hackney-based company C-12 Dance Theatre will hold the classes at the Homerton arts centre every Saturday, leading up to a final performance.

C-12 were the team behind dance film ‘East Side Story’, which was supported by drum and bass stars Rudimental, and the Council as part of its Discover Young Hackney arts festival.

There are three different classes each week: baby ballet with parents, for two to three-year-olds; ballet for kids aged three to four; and ballet for youngsters aged four and over.

Drop-in classes are £6; a 12-week term costs £66.

Word up and word forward

By Blessing Odukoya, 18

WORD Forward is a project for young people aimed at producers, singers, rappers and spoken word artists. I had the pleasure of speaking to one of the participants involved – DJ – who is an actor, spoken word artist and all round performer. He described the project as ‘somewhere a group of young people can come together and make just make music.’

Spoken word for DJ is a way in which you can express yourself and write down feelings that you otherwise can’t really explain.

Princess Anne visits St John Ambulance in Clapton

PRINCESS Anne met young members of St John Ambulance at the lifesaving charity’s Hackney branch headquarters in Clapton.

The Princess Royal, who is Commandant-in-Chief of the organisation’s cadets, saw lifesaving demonstrations by those involved in the Respect, Inspire, Support, and Empower (RISE) community project, which teaches young people from disadvantaged backgrounds vital first aid skills to deal with life threatening emergencies.

Cadets, adult

volunteers and St John staff demonstrated how to treat gun and knife wounds. The Princess was especially interested to hear how a young man had saved a friend’s life after he had been stabbed in the stomach, by using his Oyster card to stem the bleeding until an ambulance arrived.

The Princess also met members of the Children’s Acute Transport Service (CATS) and was given a tour of a paediatric unit, used for the rapid transfer of critically ill children between hospitals.

Prescribed alteration to Woodberry Down Community School from September 2014

UNDERTAKEN BY HACKNEY LEARNING TRUST

Notice is given in accordance with section 19(1) of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 that Hackney Learning Trust intends to make a prescribed alteration to Woodberry Down Community School, Woodberry Grove, N4 1SY from 1 September 2014.

Hackney Learning Trust proposes to permanently expand Woodberry Down Community School from two-forms of entry (60 pupils admitted each year), to three-forms of entry (90 pupils admitted each year), from September 2014.

The current capacity of the school is 480 and the proposed capacity will be 630. The school will be enlarged to accommodate the additional pupils. The current admission number is 60 and the proposed admission number will be 90. The school has already taken two bulge classes; one in 2012 and another in 2013. From September 2014, it is proposed that the school permanently admits 90 pupils each year and continues to do so until full.

The current number of pupils on roll at the school is 449, and the number in reception is 87.

This Notice is an extract from the complete proposal. Copies of the complete proposal can be obtained from Ian Hodges, Hackney Learning Trust
1 Reading Lane London E8 1GQ

Any person wishing to raise objections to or make comments on the proposal should send them to Ian Hodges, Hackney Learning Trust, 1 Reading Lane, E8 1GQ within four weeks from the date of publication.

Some 540 Daubeney Primary School pupils swam 25 metres at the London Aquatics Centre, as part of the Make a Splash campaign

Swimming in style

PUPILS from Daubeney Primary School took the plunge at London Aquatics Centre as they completed an eight-week challenge to learn to swim 25 metres.

As part of the 'Make a Splash' campaign, 540 children from the Homerton school swam a length of the Olympic legacy pool in front of a BBC camera crew filming their efforts for 'The One Show', which aired on 9 April. The pupils, aged four to 11 years-old, swam a total of 13,500 metres on 27 March.

Earlier this year, the Amateur Swimming Association (ASA), in “Swimming is one of the easiest, safest forms of exercise for children”

The Aquatics Centre houses two 50m pools and a 25m diving pool conjunction with Total Swimming and Hackney Council, brought a temporary swimming pool to Daubeney primary to encourage more youngsters from across the borough to learn to swim.

Since then the 'Make a Splash' campaign has taught over 1,000 Hackney children, and people from the wider community, to swim in the pop-up pool.

Jon Glenn, head of youth and community at the ASA, said: "Swimming is one of the easiest, safest forms of exercise for children of all abilities, and school swimming is the most effective way of teaching children how to be safe in and around water."

The world class Aquatics Centre houses two 50 metre pools, a 25 metre diving pool, a gym and a crèche.

Free diabetes guides and pedometers for residents

CHARITY Diabetes UK is offering residents free pedometers and health guides to raise awareness of the condition and how to reduce the risk of developing it. Type 2 diabetes is a growing problem in Hackney, with 12,403 people living in the borough diagnosed with the illness, according to NHS figures.

The chances of developing Type 2 diabetes can be significantly reduced however by leading a healthy lifestyle. The guide demonstrates how making small changes, like taking the stairs instead of the lift, or getting off the bus one stop early all add up.

Diabetes can go undetected for up to 10 years, by which time complications may have started to develop.

The risk factor increases for women with a waist measurement of over 31.5 inches, 37 inches for a man, or 35 inches for a South Asian man. Those aged over 40, or 25 if South Asian or also more at risk.

To get a free pedometer and guide, text KNOW to: 70123.

50 per cent off Run Hackney

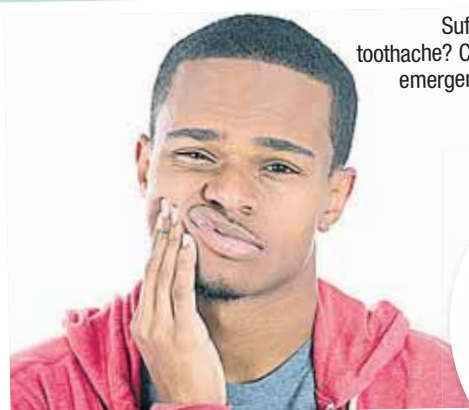

ORGANISERS are offering a 50 per cent discount on the entry fee for Hackney's first half marathon on 22 June. Half price registration is available until 21 May for residents who are in receipt of Council Tax or housing benefit, or are in full time education.

The race starts on Hackney Marshes and will take in Hackney Empire, Broadway Market and London Fields. The route will then cut through the heart of the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park to the finish line.

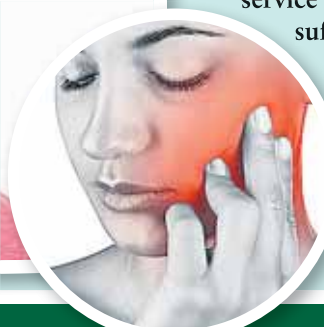

To claim the discounted Run Hackney half marathon place, residents need to provide their housing benefit number, Council Tax Reduction reference number, or student ID. Proof of address and a photo ID will also need to be provided.

Suffering from a toothache? Call the dental emergencies number

AN out of hours phone service to help those suffering from toothache and dental emergencies has been set up by the NHS. Residents can call: 020 3594 0938 and a dental healthcare professional will conduct an assessment over the phone and either arrange an urgent appointment with an out of hours dentist, or set up an appointment with a local general dental practice the next day.

The service covers the whole of North East London, including Hackney, Tower Hamlets, Newham and the City.

The telephone lines will be open Monday to Friday from 6pm to 9pm; and Saturday, Sunday and Bank Holidays from 9am to 2pm. During busy holiday periods, phone lines will be open between 9am and 4pm. At all other times patients should call 111. Calls are free from both landlines and mobile phones.

Wonder why they are so happy?

They are saving their parents up to £1000 and saving the planet around a tonne of rubbish each.

Shakespeare turns 450

By Sally England

THE date 23 April marks not only the death of William Shakespeare in 1616, but also his conjectured birth in 1564.

This year is the 450th anniversary of the playwright's birthday with celebrations planned across the country, especially in his birth place of Stratford-upon-Avon, Warwickshire.

His connections are equally strong to London, although it is not known exactly why or when he first came to the capital, it seems to have been in the late 1580s or early 1590s.

The first record of him in London puts Shakespeare in Shoreditch working with actor and impresario James Burbage at the first ever permanent professional playhouse: The Theatre.

Burbage originally trained as a joiner, and has been described as a theatre-builder in both a literal and metaphorical sense, but by 1572 he had entered the world of acting as part of the Company sponsored by Robert Dudley, the first Earl of Leicester.

The previous year had seen the Privy Council decree that all strolling players should be treated as vagabonds if not 'the servants of a nobleman', but despite the protection of Dudley's status, the Lord Mayor of London still interfered with the players' freedom, regarding performances as hotbeds of vice and crime.

Dudley obtained a Royal Patent to permit Burbage and the Company 'to use, exercise and occupy the art and faculty of playing comedies, tragedies, interludes, and stage plays ... without any of your lets and hindrances' but still the Lord Mayor insisted that a licence to perform within the City could only be given on agreement that half the plays profits should be given to the poor.

To use, exercise and occupy the art and faculty of playing comedies, tragedies, interludes, and stage plays

The solution Burbage came up with in 1576 was for the Company to establish a venue outside the City boundaries and therefore beyond the reach of the authorities. Burbage chose a site near his home in Halliwell Street, today's Holywell Lane, leasing the land for 20 years from owner Giles Allen.

Later, Burbage's second son, Richard, followed his father into acting. His early career is not clear, but he appears to have been working with Lord Strange's Men by 1591, a company that possibly also included

William Shakespeare, who mentions the company in one of his earliest plays, 'Titus Andronicus'.

Actors regularly moved between companies, theatres and patrons, but once he had got to know the Burbages, Shakespeare seems to have preferred to work with them.

In May 1594, both Richard Burbage and Shakespeare joined the newly formed Chamberlain's Men, later the King's Men, based at The Theatre, with Richard starring in many of Shakespeare's plays as well as works by other major writers of the time such as Ben Jonson, Christopher Marlowe and John Webster.

When James Burbage died in 1597, legal trouble erupted with Giles Allen when the lease expired on the land where The Theatre stood. The Chamberlain's Men had to move to the nearby Curtain, in Shoreditch, and the old playhouse stood deserted.

In a desperate attempt to salvage what they could of their investment, on the night of 28 December 1598, Richard and his older brother Cuthbert dismantled The Theatre and moved all the materials to a yard near Bridewell.

Allen tried to sue for trespass, but the Burbages had got what they wanted, and the following spring The Theatre was re-erected on the South Bank of the Thames and given a new name: The Globe.

Richard and Cuthbert remained living in Shoreditch and, like their father, were eventually buried in old St Leonard's church. Nothing can now be seen of their tombs, but it has been proposed to use new non-invasive techniques to investigate whether anything remains beneath the floor of the later church.

The location of The Theatre was rediscovered in 2008 and The Curtain in 2011. Both sites are due to be redeveloped in ways that will celebrate these major pieces of theatre history, where Shakespeare started his career with the support and friendship of the Burbage family of Shoreditch.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

IN this edition, Shoreditch Trust presents a recipe from its healthy eating programme which aims to help residents produce tasty and seasonal food throughout the year.

Sea bass is a source of calcium, vitamin A, B6 and protein. A fresh fish should not smell strong, and the eyes and gills should be clear. Baking and grilling fish is much healthier than frying, and often tastier too.

Marinated baked sea bass

Serves 4-8

Preparation time
30 mins

Cooking time
15 mins

Ingredients

- 2 limes, juice only
- 2 tbsp chopped, fresh coriander leaves
- 3 sprigs fresh parsley
- 5 sprigs fresh thyme, leaves only
- ½ tsp ground allspice
- 1 tsp Worcestershire sauce
- 1 Scotch bonnet chilli, seeds removed, roughly chopped
- 2 spring onions, trimmed, finely chopped
- 3 tbsp olive oil, plus extra to serve
- salt and freshly ground black pepper
- 4 x 100g sea bass fillets.

Method

- For the sea bass marinade, blend the lime juice, coriander, parsley, thyme, allspice, Worcestershire sauce, chilli, spring onions and half of the olive oil in a food processor until smooth. Season, to taste, with salt and freshly ground black pepper
- Lay the sea bass fillets into a shallow glass or ceramic dish and pour over the marinade
- Cover the dish with cling film and chill in the fridge for 15-20 minutes. (Do not leave the fish any longer or the citric acid from the lime juice will start to 'cook' it)
- Take out of fridge, place on tray lined with parchment paper and bake for 12 to 15 minutes in a pre-heated oven at 180C. Serve.
